Colliers International Names Bill Coyle as New Managing Director of Sacramento Region

Coyle Brings Diverse Real Estate Background to New Position

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (March 9, 2009) -- Colliers International, a worldwide real estate service company, announced today that local real estate executive, Bill Coyle, has been named Managing Director of the Sacramento and Roseville offices.

"Bill is a terrific addition to our team," said Craig Robbins, president of Colliers International. He added, "His knowledge of the Sacramento market coupled with his diversified background made him the clear choice to lead our office as we seek to become the number one commercial real estate company in the region."

Coyle, a Sacramento native, has spent his entire career in real estate having worked in the past as a broker for CB Commercial and Grubb & Ellis; in corporate real estate for Dollar Tree Stores; and, most recently, in real estate development for Granite Bay Ventures. His first day will be March 16.

He will be tasked with growing the local office by expanding existing client relationships as well as adding new clients drawn to Colliers diverse services including appraisal/valuation, capital markets financing, consulting, property management and corporate services. At the same time Coyle will be responsible for attracting top real estate professionals to the Colliers team.

"I have always had great respect for Colliers and I am excited to join the company," said Coyle. "Given the economy, there are tremendous opportunities to make some unbelievable deals for our clients. We have a strong team in place, a clear vision and I can't wait to get started."
